Dear GayLynn and Michael:

I am sorry I can't make the "Special Evening with the Tom Grant Band" in Lincoln City Saturday to personally commend the Lincoln Shelter for its good works.

Dr. Sewell, the other Board members, Tom Grant, and you can be proud of your efforts in caring for the children and other victims of domestic violence in your community year after year in increasing numbers.

Oscar Wilde once said that "Children begin by loving their parents. After a time, they judge them. Rarely, if ever, do they forgive them." In my travels, however, I have found that children often forgive their parents--and for unforgivable acts. Throughout time, courage has been regarded as one of the major human virtues and never more so than when displayed by children.

In my meetings throughout the state with community leaders and citizens, I am much encouraged at the number of programs and enthusiasm generated for Oregon's "Children's Agenda." Over time, these efforts may ease the burden of shelters like yours. Until then, we are counting on you to "mind the children" in Lincoln County.

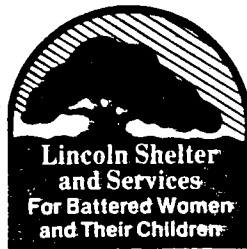

Sincerely,

Neil Goldschmidt
Governor

Re: "A Special Evening With The Tom Grant Band"

Dear Governor Goldschmidt:

We would like to take the earliest opportunity to invite you to the second "Special Evening With The Tom Grant Band" in Lincoln City. The evening is scheduled for Saturday, September 10, 1988 at 8:00 PM at the Shilo Inn. This is a benefit presented by Lincoln Shelter and Services for the survivors of domestic violence and their children.

This is a record breaking year for Lincoln Shelter and Services. So far this fiscal year (July/June) we have sheltered 232 people. Out of those 232 people, 124 of them were children under 12 years of age. Last year, our total number of people sheltered was 227. This represents a 36% increase in number of people sheltered! One might wonder if this is good news or bad. Our operating budget has suffered as we did not anticipate this much growth, but the good news is that more people are choosing to live without violence.

It is no coincidence that this happened after last years Tom Grant concert. We went a long way towards raising the communities awareness about domestic violence, sexual assault and child abuse. It is certainly due in part to Tom Grant himself as he is not only a talented musician, but is committed to the cause of ending domestic and world violence.

The significance of the Tom Grant concert did not escape the Lincoln City business community. At this years Community Awards Banquet, Michael Sketch, the Board Member responsible for putting the event together, won the Community Involvement Award for producing the single most important new event to come to Lincoln City. The chair of our Board of Directors, Dr. Robert Sewell, won the Man of the Year Award in recognition of his tireless work with abused children and community service.

Your recognition of the issues surrounding domestic violence and the impact it has on our children has been very encouraging to us because this is also our "Year of the Child" at Lincoln Shelter and Services. We are trying to expand the services that we provide to children while they are in shelter. This year we are asking for a Juvenile Treatment Specialist to be included in the services that we provide so that we may better evaluate and counsel with children who have suffered the effects of domestic violence.

Again, we would be honored to have you attend our concert in September if you can work it into your schedule. We feel that this is a unique way of expanding community awareness on these important issues. If we can be of assistance in obtaining reservations for accommodations, we would be happy to do so. We look forward to seeing you on September 10th for a wonderful evening of entertainment for a very good cause.

Sincerely,

I am pleased to submit this letter in support of Zimmer Gunsul Frasca Partnership's nomination for the AIA Firm Award.

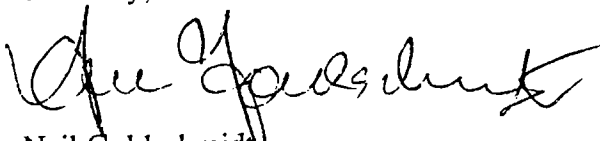

I know and work with the leadership of this firm in my capacity as Governor today, as I have since I began in public life in 1969. While the firm is substantially larger than it was when I first met its principals, some things about it have never changed. Its commitment to doing public work, even where the work wasn't particularly profitable, has always been strong. I'm sure it's principals enjoy the work that they have done for the public; but, more importantly, I have always recognized that the framework for private design can only be enhanced by quality public planning and implementation.

I've always thought the ultimate test of quality architecture was not just in the good feelings of those who reside in or use the end-product, but in the appetite that it develops in the community-at-large for more quality in the things they commission, build, or use. I cannot think of any force that has been more important over the past 20 years in developing an appetite among Oregonians for more high quality public and private structures than Zimmer Gunsul Frasca Partnership. They have encouraged governments everywhere to seek out architects of merit, even where it meant the competition made it less likely that they would build a particular building. In the end, the competition has created a diverse backdrop of excellent architecture for all of us to love and enjoy. I'm sure this has made demand for their services more certain.

This recommendation is gladly and hopefully submitted in the belief that, if the AIA Firm Award is the highest you have to award, then no one in this part of the United States of American is more deserving of receiving it.

Thank you very much for your consideration.

Dear Neil:

I appreciate you returning my call. Sorry we keep missing each other. The purpose of my call is to request a letter of recommendation from you in support of our nomination for the AIA Firm Award. I realize you get bombarded with requests such as this, but the personal attention you obviously gave to Greg Baldwin's Fellowship nomination was much appreciated. We are hoping you will agree to do the same for us again. This will give you some additional information about the award, and what you need to do to respond, if you agree to do so.

An independent jury is selected by the AIA to "judge" the Firm Award submissions. This year's jury is composed of Frank Gehry, Los Angeles architect, as chairman. Other voting members are Lewis Davis, partner in the New York architectural firm Davis Brody; Boone Powell, an architect from San Antonio, Texas, and chairman of the AIA Committee on Design; Jianfranco Monacelli, President, Rizzoli; and John B. Jackson, author and lecturer from Santa Fe, New Mexico. The criteria for the award is very general and simply states:

"The Architectural Firm Award of the Institute shall be awarded to a firm which has consistently produced distinguished architecture for a period of at least 10 years. This award is the highest honor the Institute can bestow on a firm."

Jim Murphy of Progressive Architecture is assisting us in the preparation of our submission, with the thrust of our presentation as follows:

- The influence our firm has had on the quality of the built environment in our region, specifically since 1966. Portland, Oregon is recognized nationally and internationally as a model community for urban design and architectural innovation and ZGF has contributed substantially to that quality;
- The fact that our design has been specific to this region and the importance of regionalism;
- The quality of design is represented in all aspects of the practice, not only the conceptual aspect, and therefore many of the principals have contributed to that goal;
- That the design has represented a variety of building types (i.e., not just office buildings) and therefore, the influence of the architecture has touched a broad spectrum of society.

The Honorable Ron Wyden
Room 2452 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Senator Packwood and Congressman Wyden:

This letter is to follow up on a point discussed at the hearing held in Portland on April 16. At the hearing, both Ellen Pinney and State Senator John Kitzhaber, mentioned that agreement on the waiver language had been reached among a broad based coalition of groups interested in providing access to health care for all Oregonians. We thought it might be helpful for you to have in writing the specific language to which we have agreed:

- 1) The Secretary of HHS can only approve Oregon's application for a waiver if SB 27 offers an adequate level of health benefits.
- 2) The Secretary will have ongoing oversight of the adequacy of the benefits made available under the waiver, and would be able to terminate the waiver at any time the benefit level became inadequate.
- 3) The Secretary will publish a list of the provisions of Title XIX which would be waived to allow the implementation of the Oregon Basic Health Services Act and provide for a 30 day period of public comment on the waiver.
- 4) The waiver would be Oregon specific.

In addition to these general provisions, more precise language was worked out to insure the intent of the group was clear in sub (1) above. This language is as follows:

The Secretary shall, subject to the provisions of this section, only approve an application by the State which:

- (A) carries out the provisions of Oregon's Senate Bill 27; and
- (B) offers a standard of health benefits which meets the basic health needs of the eligible population, including components of at least the following services:
  - (i) provider services and supplies;
  - (ii) outpatient services;
  - (iii) inpatient hospital services; and
  - (iv) health promotion and disease prevention services.

In determining whether the basic health needs of the population have been met, the Secretary shall consider the effect of approving or denying the waiver on the health of those currently covered by Medicaid, as well as those not covered by Medicaid to whom benefits would be extended by implementation of the Oregon Basic Health Services Act (SB-27, SB-534, SB-935; 1989)

The group also discussed other subjects that have been mentioned in connection with the waiver, and agreed that the written material that we will use in mounting the education effort necessary to support your efforts to obtain the waiver would need to make it clear that the Oregon approach will also insure the following:

- 1) That eligibility standards would be easier to meet than those under the current medicaid system.
- 2) That medicaid clients would not be required to pay co-payments and deductibles.
- 3) That provider participation will be sufficient to meet the needs of those eligible under the program expansion.
- 4) That the appeals processes usually available under Title XIX will be available to medicaid clients.

We hope this helps clarify our position on the language that should be included in the waiver and the elements that will be critical to the success of our initiative. Thank you for all you have done to help in this regard already and the efforts you will extend on behalf of our state in the future.

Dear Bob:

As lead governor for the National Governors' Association on refugee issues and as the governor of Oregon which has the eleventh largest refugee resettlement program in the nation I urge you to advocate for a supplemental request for $52 million. This supplemental is to offset the projected shortfall in refugee funding used to reimburse states for public assistance costs to refugees and to establish equity in the periods of eligibility for welfare eligible refugees and non-welfare eligible refugees.

Since the establishment of the Refugee Act of 1980 the partnership established between the federal government and the state refugee programs has seriously eroded. Since all of the decisions regarding the granting of refugee status and the decisions regarding the numbers of refugees admitted to the United States are federal decisions, and the states are in effect the executors of the federal program, the Refugee Act of 1980 established that the federal government would be responsible for the costs of refugee resettlement. This federal responsibility would be for each refugee admitted and would continue for thirty-six months after admission.

The partnership of the Refugee Act of 1980 has seriously eroded and the federal government has severely reduced its commitment to the state refugee programs. On five separate occasions the federal government has reduced its commitment to refugee resettlement. On four of these occasions the period of reimbursement to states was reduced. This in effect has placed substantial costs of refugee resettlement onto the states. The states however still do not have a role in the decisions made at the federal level. In FFY 1990 the portion of the refugee budget used to reimburse states for the public assistance costs of refugees is projected to have a $42 million shortfall. An additional $10 million is necessary to establish equity regarding the period of time welfare eligible and non-welfare eligible refugees may receive assistance.

The network of state refugee programs and the National Governors' Association maintain their commitment to refugee resettlement and the humanitarian value and importance of this national effort. The federal government must conscientiously respond in this state/federal partnership by appropriately funding the refugee program. The request for a $52 million refugee supplemental for FFY 1990 would restore the federal commitment to only one third of actual commitment spelled out in the Refugee Act of 1980.

I strongly urge your support of this request and your active advocacy to secure the necessary funding.

Sincerely,

Dear Bob:

Oregonians in Malheur County have a problem and need your help.

I've had a lot of letters and petitions from hundreds of citizens in Ontario, Vale, Nyssa and surrounding areas about being cut off from Oregon-specific programming on television (including all Oregon news!). The area has had a cable TV contract with Chambers Communications. Chambers discontinued Portland stations from that area, and now, as of January 1, all they get are Boise stations, no Oregon news or any other type of Oregon coverage. The reason, Chambers people say, stems from an FCC ruling called "syndex" which states there can't be duplicate programming in any given area. However, in the attached letter, note that Chambers Communications says it's a "business" decision.

I understand that the syndex rule isn't meant to blot out local coverage in this way, and that other cable companies elsewhere have found ways to provide local coverage and still avoid duplications.

I have written to Chambers Communications registering my strong dissatisfaction for not serving the community needs in this area. I'm letting you know in the hope that you will, too. This concern also may be a help as you consider FCC/cable television issues.

The Honorable Bob Packwood
United States Senate

Dear Bob:

I strongly support your efforts to enact federal legislation to address the log export problem. From my perspective, legislation is clearly needed on the federal level to enable the State of Oregon to prohibit the export of unprocessed timber from state-owned lands and to ban the export of unprocessed timber from federal lands and gradually eliminate the substitution of federal timber for private log exports.

States are the only forest landowners who cannot decide who they want as customers. Allowing the states to sell only to domestic mills is not an issue of free trade. It's an issue of a state being able to decide how to use its own resources.

Oregon sawmills are facing critical log supply problems. At the same time, over one billion board feet of logs have been exported from Oregon during each of the last three years. The logs exported from state-owned lands alone in 1987 could have supplied between 400 and 500 jobs in Oregon mills. Each of these jobs would produce one-to-two more indirect and induced jobs through the multiplier effect.

Aside from the job loss, log exports adversely affect the price of all timber available to Oregon mills. Bidding by exporters increases log prices to domestic manufacturers by 30 percent. This upward pressure on log prices increases the cost of production and undercuts the efforts of local mills to improve their competitiveness. To accept the higher bid price of exported logs as the best we can do for ourselves is shortsighted.

We need to be building an economy that creates jobs, value added products and encourages investment for the longterm. Your legislation is a significant step in this direction. I pledge my support for your efforts.

Seniors sought by Sen. Packwood

Oregon Sen. Bob Packwood is seeking two Oregonians, age 60 or older, to participate in the 1988 Congressional Senior Intern Program from May 22-28 in Washington, D.C.

"Now in its 16th year, our senior intern program is without a doubt one of the most valuable and informative programs the federal government has to offer. Everyone benefits from the exchange of ideas, suggestions and information on issues important to our seniors during the week-long experience," said Packwood.

Those Oregonians selected for the program will participate in seminars, workshops and tours, and will meet with Sen. Packwood and his staff on issues of concern to older Americans. Issues for discussion will include Social Security, Medicare and pending catastrophic health insurance legislation. The program is designed to increase seniors' knowledge of government programs and legislation that affects them.

Individuals interested in participating in the program should send their name, address, phone number, background information, letters of support and a brief statement on why he or she would like to participate to: Sen. Bob Packwood, 101 S.W. Main St., Portland, Oregon 97204. Nominations are welcome from individuals or their senior organizations and should be sent to Sen. Packwood by April 8. The intern selections will be announced April 29.

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Governor Neil Goldschmidt
254 State Capitol
Salem, Oregon 97310

Dear Governor:

First let me wish to you and for you, the happiest and most successful New Year! Thank you Governor for enjoying your painting well enough to display it in your office.... I must honestly say that I am honored.

Thank you also for your help in searching for my father. I have sent the information that I have to Mary Hansen. Please give my special "Thanks" to Sarah Johnson on your staff, who also has given of her time to help.

This New Year sums to be keeping you busy and my prayers are with you daily to accomplish your goals for this year! Amen

Something I believe you should know Governor and that is, there are many people within our general area who support you and believe in you.... but most important they trust you. They're sure and are a part of Oregon's growth, which is a sense of security for them. Especially when many have lived here all or most of their lives. You have many accomplishments Governor and we are certainly proud to have you represent us. Personally Governor, I am in hopes that you have greater political desires, as many more people of this State would benefit from your gifts and abilities to do for the people you represent.

This New Year Phil and I started off with a fast trip to the emergency in Coquille. She been very ill (but feeling a little better) and going for special tests. The doctors think the cancer has spread into the bone.... they've suggested chemotherapy again, which we will decide depending on the test results.

We're still trying to find the 17 pounds I lost in the past few weeks, so the chemo really isn't number 1 yet on my priority list! I would like to thank you again Governor for your help in arranging assistance from the Oregon State Police, when and if needed. Phil has been a most loving and supporting husband but he still has some fears.... and your concerns for my health situation has helped in relieving some stress in our circumstance.

In closing Governor, thank you for your assistance, help and concerns... and for being a friend!

May God bless you,

Sincerely,

Leolaene Page

Dear Governor Goldschmidt:

Please find enclosed a copy of a letter recently received by high school counselors throughout the State of Oregon advertising your Mentor Graphics Governor's Scholarship. I think the scholarship idea is wonderful, however, I must take exception to the fact that there is only one scholarship being offered. I say this because I had an opportunity to observe the beautiful promotional materials sent along with the enclosed letter and brochure. It seems to me that, had a more austere approach been made to the advertising, your office could have afforded at least two, possibly three, very similar scholarships.

I also realize that all monies for the scholarship and printing of promotional materials come directly from Mentor Graphics, however, money is money, and more scholarships would be much more beneficial to our youth than lovely mailings--and would still be tax deductible for Mentor Graphics.

Thanks, I needed to get that off my chest.

Sincerely,

Barbara Loomis Palanuk

P.S. Tell Margie hello. I have watched your career throughout the years with great interest and enjoyment. I remember when Margie and I (along with several others) would ride our bikes through the UO campus looking for trouble, and always hoping we wouldn't find it! By the way, I, too, have a Josh (and a Judd and a Jake). Josh is a freshman at Willamette and was their punter in football this past year. He's majoring in procrastination and doing quite well, I might add.

Dear Guidance Counselor:

A unique opportunity is waiting for one Oregon high school senior. It's the new, four-year full scholarship and internship program created by Beaverton-based Mentor Graphics Corporation. The program is for undergraduate study in computer science, computer engineering or electrical engineering at Oregon State University.

I am convinced this program will prove invaluable to us all. It will provide unique educational and career opportunities, enhance the stature of Oregon State University, and, I hope, provide a model of corporate citizenship which other companies may very well follow.

The ultimate success of this program will be determined years from now by the students who receive this scholarship. I know they will be among Oregon's best and brightest, not just leaders today but also leaders for decades to come.

I urge you and other counselors across the state to encourage qualified students to apply for this exceptional opportunity.

Sincerely,

Neil Goldschmidt
Governor

Four expense-paid years at OSU.

It could be yours: All tuition. All room and board. All the money you need for books. For all four years.

But this scholarship includes even more: Optional eight-week paid summer internships at Mentor Graphics' headquarters in Beaverton, Oregon after the winner completes his or her freshman and sophomore years. Plus an additional eight-week paid internship following the winner's junior year and an opportunity to spend the last summer in a Mentor Graphics office overseas.

What will it take to win?

It isn't going to be easy. But one talented student will win it all.

Entries are limited to students with a minimum accumulative 3.0 grade point average during five high school semesters (Grades ten, eleven, plus the first semester of twelfth grade).

You'll also need a minimum SAT math score of 600. Plus a cumulative SAT score of at least 1100.

You'll need a letter of recommendation from one of your mathematics or science teachers.

While academic performance and a commitment to the study of computer science or electronic engineering are both very important, the scholarship's selection committee also seeks students with well-rounded interests and leadership potential.

During his or her undergraduate studies, the scholarship's recipient must maintain all Oregon State University grade-point average and course-load requirements for full-time students. The recipient must also meet requirements for enrollment and graduation as a computer science, computer engineering or electronic engineering major.

You've got to act fast.

Applications must be received by Mentor Graphics no later than March 9, 1988. So ask your college counselor for a scholarship application today. Be sure to attach your high school transcript for grades 10, 11 and first semester 12th, a photocopy of your SAT scores (if not included on transcripts) and your teacher's letter of recommendation.

All applications will be reviewed by members of the scholarship selection committee. This committee is comprised of representatives from Mentor Graphics, Governor Goldschmidt's office and Oregon State University.

The scholarship committee will select no more than five finalists and notify them by March 18, 1988. These finalists will then be interviewed at Mentor Graphics headquarters in Beaverton during the week of March 21; finalists' expenses will be reimbursed by Mentor Graphics. The scholarship winner will be announced on April 5, 1988.

Mentor Graphics shares Governor Neil Goldschmidt's commitment to an "Oregon Comeback." This scholarship, funded by Mentor Graphics, is intended to help that comeback by supporting one deserving student each year. In turn, the scholarship program will ultimately contribute to Oregon's high-technology industry, the state education system, and the future of Oregon itself.

About Mentor Graphics

Mentor Graphics Corporation is the worldwide leader in electronic design automation. A publicly held corporation based in Beaverton, Oregon, the company designs and markets advanced computer-based systems for the electrical and mechanical design of integrated circuits, printed circuit boards and electronic packaging, plus computer-based systems for publishing and documentation. Mentor Graphics, with over 40 worldwide locations, employs more than 1200 people. Its 1987 sales surpassed $220 million. Within the last year Business Week magazine named Mentor Graphics one of America's "Most Valuable Companies."

HERE'S WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT. AND HOW YOU CAN APPLY.

An estimated 30,000 students are expected to graduate from Oregon high schools next spring. And 15,000 are expected to go on to college. It's a pretty impressive number.

But only one Oregon student will have what it takes to earn the four-year Mentor Graphics Governor's Scholarship for the undergraduate study of computer science, computer engineering or electrical engineering at Oregon State University.

Dear Ms. Park:

We would like to encourage AT & T to become a promoter of international trade efforts in Oregon by contributing resources to support the Oregon Trade & Marketing Center Information Center Library.

The Oregon Trade & Marketing Center is a key element in our State's efforts to promote international trade in Oregon.

Export-focused businesses are believed to be the source of one in every eight jobs in Oregon. Economic analysts believe that new exports and imports will be a major source of new job openings for Oregon's labor force.

The Oregon businesses with the greatest potential for export growth are those with a relatively small employee base who need information and expert guidance in identifying and responding to trade and investment opportunities.

The Oregon Trade & Marketing Center Information Center Library is intended to accomplish that goal by concentrating on country-specific information and tailoring unique services to respond to the needs of Oregon businesses. It will also become a repository of economic and demographic information on Oregon for foreign companies wanting to do business with us. At the same time, the Oregon Trade & Marketing Center will serve as the resource information link between its tenant agencies.

This project is an important piece of the Oregon Comeback and we would very much like to have AT & T involved.

Dear Mr. Parkinson:

It was my pleasure to meet with you to discuss Micron's future plans. Let me emphasize again Oregon's desire and commitment to working with you to carry out your development.

I strongly believe that Oregon offers Micron Technology a welcome environment for this important investment. Key advantages which this State offers include: a growing community of technology-related companies; an expanding research and development environment, evidenced by the announcement on Saturday regarding the Oregon Institute for Advanced Computing; a work force nationally recognized for its skills and dedication; and of course the facility at Cornell Oaks which can be outfitted and ready within six months.

I am impressed with Micron's commitment to hiring minority, refugee, and handicapped workers. To respond to this commitment, the State, with the cooperation of the Private Industry Council, will provide you with a specifically-designed recruitment and training program. Our commitment to you is to deliver a selected pool of pre-trained workers to meet your development time frame. I understand the importance of a good work force in keeping Micron competitive in the world market; and I assure you of the State's assistance in recruiting and keeping quality employees.

Again, let me reiterate the State of Oregon's commitment to the success of Micron Technology and look forward to meeting with you again during an upcoming visit to Oregon.

Dear Mr. Pastore:

I delayed responding to your letter of December 8 in order to allow completion of the public hearing and final revision of OAR 583-30, to which you had raised objections. The Office of Educational Policy and Planning has distributed the completed rule amendment, and your representative at the hearing was given a detailed written response. I would expect your perception of the situation to have changed appreciably now that several modifications of the proposed rule have been made as a direct result of City University concerns.

City University was not "singled out" in any way. The OEPP received comments on the rule from the academic vice-chancellor of the state system, the commissioner for community college services, the executive secretary of the Oregon Community College Association, and the executive director of the Oregon Independent Colleges Association. They were unanimous in declaring that institutions within their purview could satisfy the academic standards in 583-30 and would regard those standards as reasonable, in fact desirable. I am satisfied that the discretionary exceptions permitted by the language of the rule will allow flexibility wherever extreme variance does not imply substandard education.

I assure you that your institution, like any other school from out of state, is entirely welcome in Oregon as long as it continues to meet the standards for quality of service to our residents.

M. Pastore

December 8, 1987

The Honorable Neil Goldschmidt
Governor of Oregon
254 State Capitol
Salem, OR 97310

Dear Governor Goldschmidt:

I am writing to you as President of City University, a Washington-chartered educational institution with two campuses in the State of Oregon. As you may not be personally familiar with City University, I have enclosed a copy of our 1987-1988 catalog.

City University (then City College) came to Oregon in 1977, and since that time some 600 students have been graduated from this school in the State of Oregon and some 3,000 students are attending and have attended the institution. City University is accredited by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges, which is the accrediting agency designated by the Department of Health Education and Welfare for this region, and which is specifically recognized as such by Oregon law.

City University's previous relationship to the State of Oregon has been with the Oregon Education Coordinating Commission. Our relationship with the Commission, and in particular in recent years, has been satisfactory, we believe, to both the Commission and ourselves. Our relationships to the staff have not been that good. While City University has in many areas, including bonding, insurance, etc., been happy to follow OECC suggestions, we have resisted the staff's efforts to dictate to us specified faculty mix, degree requirements as to whether one must invariably be a high school graduate, etc. We have pointed out that in areas where changes have been demanded of City University in these areas, particularly related to academic freedom and administrative discretion, we have been singled out and held to higher standards than those addressed to other institutions, and in particular Oregon State University. We have also felt the personal animosity of individual staff members, who have expressed such views to prospective students and others.

It is within this context that we view with regret the abolition of the OECC, whose independent commissioners passed upon staff action and set policy, and transfer of its functions into the present Office, where apparently the staff is seeking even more intensive reviewing authority. When we subtract those institutions for which exemptions are made, we find that the proposed regulations are aimed very directly at City University. All State institutions are exempted, and Oregon private schools which have Northwest

Association accreditation are likewise exempted. That leaves private out-of-state-chartered schools, even though similarly accredited, as the subject of this detailed supervision and regulation. To our best understanding, this group includes only City University, an educational institute affording undergraduate and graduate level degree programs in not only Oregon, but also Washington, California and British Columbia, plus some four other institutions which in no way seek to cover this broad spectrum, as the "regulatory targets."

In our study of these proposed regulations, we see requirements aimed at us which had been suggested by the staff during the days of the OECC, but which, when we declined to follow them, were not pressed before the OECC for determination. A considerable number of these proposed rules will economically impact City University as well as limit its independence. We comment here on only six of these:

1. To require that "A student admitted to undergraduate degree study for the first time shall have either a high school diploma or an equivalent credential" is clearly intrusive, interfering with a college's or university's own determination of its admission standards.
2. To require that "A student admitted to the graduate degree study shall have a baccalaureate degree" is not only intrusive, for the same reason as indicated in regard to the item above, but also unreasonable in that it establishes an admission standard which is entirely unsuited to some adult students of demonstrated exceptional competence and experience.
3. That "A teacher on a master's degree faculty ordinarily shall possess an appropriate doctor's degree" is discriminatory and out of line in the case of many highly gifted and accomplished teacher/practitioners whose experience in the fields in which they provide instruction far outweighs the significance of possession of a doctoral credential.
4. To require that, regardless of arrangements it has made for its students to have comprehensive privileges at libraries of other organizations, a college or university must "develop a core library of its own" is arbitrary, going way beyond what is required by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges, the major accrediting institution for Oregon colleges and universities.
5. To require that "There shall be no less than 15 square feet per student station in classrooms, with at least one station for every two FTE students enrolled" is completely unnecessary and implies that individual colleges or universities are unaware of what facilities are adequate and conducive to learning.
6. As a very burdensome item we could cite the following. "A school authorized to offer or confer an academic degree shall submit to the Office, annually, a report of the activities of the academic, financial or calendar year just ended. In that report, the school shall describe any changes or plans for change in academic or administrative affairs including facilities or location of instruction, and it shall summarize any changes in organization or personnel completed or intended." The time, effort and cost that would be spent in complying with this and many other items will gradually force City University into raising its very low tuitions, and falling behind its Oregon-chartered competitors.

There is another proposed rule, found under the rather misleading caption of "Award of Honorary Degrees," reciting in 583-03-022(3) that "an applicant's school shall disclose any business or other relationship with another organization where that relationship could influence decisions taken by the school in a matter other than content of instruction. The school shall furnish such information concerning the other organization and the relationship as the office may direct..." This would seem to be directed at the undersigned, and the for-profit corporation of which I am President, Institute for Business and International Development (IBID). IBID contracts with City University to perform a wide spectrum of administrative services. That contract has been modified quite some years ago to meet the concerns of OECC, and is disclosed in the annual audits of City University prior submitted to OECC. Nonetheless, the then OECC staff, now the staff of the Office, took continuing umbrage at this relationship, and the language quoted can be viewed as only a rekindling of the issue in a new forum.

Quite apart from the foregoing, the students who have historically attended City University have come from a mature (usually in their 30s) segment of Oregon society, to which these detailed instructions as to how we are to conduct academic affairs and student relationships seems particularly ill-suited. Burdening of City University, as an accredited member of NWASC with the costly compliance requirements of these proposed rules, while at the same time leaving free from these requirements similarly situated schools which are "Oregon" schools, will have the obvious effect of greatly increasing City University's costs of running its Oregon campuses, and commensurate therewith, the increase of its highly attractive tuition rates. It is hard to believe that this is the result to be desired by the general public, and certainly by those people who anticipate attending the City University, or who are in attendance there now.

From the standpoint of an economic impact on the State of Oregon, City University is a viable and highly respected resource for management education. This, as you know, is the foundation of improved industrial leadership, a necessary component of economic development. In addition, since 1977 City University has provided this resource at no cost to the State of Oregon. In fact, since 1984 alone, City University has invested a total of $1,726,880 in the State of Oregon. Since 1980 City University has provided jobs to the extent of $1,623,038.19 which as you know has a direct impact on the economic development of the State.

I would respectfully request that your office review these proposed amendments in light of this letter to see whether you do not agree that the presumed benefit of the proposed rules -- the disciplining of City University -- is not far exceeded by the continuance of what we believe to have been a useful educational life within this community. As President of City University I would appreciate an opportunity to discuss personally with you any concerns or questions you might have.

Sincerely,

Michael A. Pastore, Ph.D.
President

MEMO TO: Fred Miller

FROM: T. K. Olson T.K. Olson

SUBJECT: Letter to Goldschmidt on Dec. 8, 1987 from President Michael Pastore of City University of Seattle concerning proposed rules by OEPP on degree authorization in Oregon.

Just a note to put into context the major allegations of Pastore's letter to Neil. His assumptions are:

- The staff of this agency has been and continues to be antagonistic to his institution;
- The proposed rule amendments are aimed specifically at City University to "discipline" the school;
- The proposed rules constitute a radical change from standards the former commission meant to apply;
- Schools which are accredited by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges should be exempt from regulation by states for branch campuses in these states.

All of those assumptions are incorrect. The suggestion that agency staff have some personal bias against the school is without foundation. City University has received a great deal of criticism over the years from "establishment" higher education, focusing on its nontraditional practices of having many instructional sites, no library, almost all part-time faculty at low pay, relatively narrow curriculum, aggressive media advertising, an emphasis on the practical as opposed to the theoretical, and its unique arrangement for the provision of administrative services for a non-profit institution through a profit-making corporation headed by the president of the institution. It has been the agency staff that has insisted on asking whether the students doing the work are satisfied and whether the employers of those students who are largely subsidizing the tuition are satisfied with the products of the City University programs. The answers up to now have always been affirmative. That evidence and the fact that the school has met the vast majority of the standards without conditional stipulations in previous reviews has led the staff to recommend positive authorization in 1980, 1982 and 1985.

The staff has recommended favorable authorization for the school on each occasion when it came before the agency for action and the staff members have on numerous occasions assured inquiring prospective students and faculty about the institution and that it had indeed met state standards.

Of course City University has not been "singled out" in any way. We received comments on the proposed rule from the academic vice-chancellor of the state system, the commissioner for community college services, the executive secretary of the Oregon Community College Association, and the executive director of the Oregon Independent College Association. They were unanimous in declaring that institutions within their purview could satisfy the academic standards in 583-30 and would regard those standards as reasonable, in fact desirable. We are satisfied that the discretionary exceptions permitted by the language of the rule will allow flexibility wherever extreme variance does not imply substandard education.

Literally dozens of schools express interest in offering academic degree programs in Oregon, whether starting from out-of-state or from within. Clear standards give them a much better basis for deciding whether to make the attempt, discouraging many who might have wanted to turn a quick tuition dollar in a perceived market. In the last few years, 15 applicant schools received authorization for one or more degrees, three were rejected, and several others were ordered to cease and desist from illegal activity. More than half of all these were in-state schools. City University is one of five approved schools that had regional accreditation, one of four from outside Oregon. It does not in any sense occupy a category of its own as Mr. Pastore seems to have supposed.

Far from being a radical departure from existing practice the proposed rules are largely an exercise in spelling out current standards as now applied. A criticism of the existing rules has been their generality, their lack of implementation specific. The proposed rules eliminate this ambiguity which has been so irksome to applicants while still preserving adoptive flexibility where necessary.

Oregon statute requires all out of state colleges and universities operating in the state to be regulated, whether accredited or not. There are some obvious reasons for that. First, there is no reason to assume that an out-of-state school will bring to Oregon the same quality of instruction and services that may have enabled it to obtain accreditation in its home state. Second, the out-of-state school is not under the control of Oregon resident trustees and those trustees may wish to manage the branch school for the benefit of the home institution, rather than for the benefit of Oregon society.

Memo to Fred Miller

I will not comment here on the merits of City University's claim that its applicants need neither high school diploma or specified equivalent, that its graduate students need not have graduated, that its teachers need not have studied at a higher level than that at which they are teaching, or that a university does not need any library of its own. Some of this remains to be examined, and in most cases there is an "escape clause" for a unique school, provided the school accepts responsibility to justify an exception. Obviously the standards have to be written to deal with schools that do not know or care what "facilities are adequate and conducive to learning," even if City University is confident that it does. It is very hard to appreciate that the annual report is burdensome, since we envision a page or two summarizing major developments at a school. Other schools routinely give us such reports.

Whether or not there would be additional operating costs as a result of the new rules will depend on (1) the language of the rules finally adopted, (2) the degree to which an institution is now in compliance with those rules. Clearly it is not the intention of this agency to cause institutions to bear unnecessary expenditures. But it is hardly an argument against rule clarification that a school can no longer save money by avoiding detection of substandard practices.

Mr. Pastore's confused reference to application procedure (misread as "honorary degrees") is another example of misunderstanding a point that has implications far wider than the interests of his school. The importance we attach to revelation of personal financial gain has to do with conflict of interest, self-dealing in a public trust, subordination of educational intent, and the like. It follows from a suit brought by the Oregon Department of Justice against principals of another school, alleging breach of fiduciary duty through manipulation to produce personal gain from a nonprofit organization. Beyond questions of legality, we would consider it an unethical practice in education to represent a school as nonprofit if true intent was to create a facade for some personally profitable operation.

Dear Governor Goldschmidt:

I was sorry to have missed the lunch Dick Holbrooke held for you a few weeks ago at the Four Seasons, but unfortunately, I was out of town. Unlike the others at the lunch, I grew up in Portland, spend my summer holiday in Oregon and own property and intend to build a house at Black Butte Ranch. As a boy, I grew up fishing the Metolius (when the fishing was truly excellent), and have been alarmed at the Forest Service's logging plans for the Metolius basin.

As a consequence, I just wanted to add my voice to those who have already approached you on the need to create a Metolius conservation area. Given the tremendous growth in Central Oregon in the last decade, it would be a shame to damage, either through logging or over enthusiastic recreational development, a river valley that retains its pristine beauty. I urge you to do whatever you can to make the Metolius conservation area a reality.

I hope we get a chance to meet the next time you're in New York.

All the best,

Maynard Parker
